Responses to Frequently Asked Questions About

The National Association for Developmental Education

Mission

NADE seeks to improve the theory and practice of developmental education at all levels of the educational spectrum, the professional capabilities of developmental educators, and the design of programs to prepare developmental educators.

Purpose

NADE focuses on the academic success of students by providing professional development, supporting student learning, providing public leadership, disseminating exemplary models of practice, coordinating efforts with other organizations, facilitating communication among developmental education professionals, and anticipating trends.

NADE Motto

Helping underprepared students prepare, prepared students advance, advanced students excel

NADE Logo

The wing in the NADE logo symbolizes our belief that the skills for learning are the wings of freedom.

Definition of Developmental Education

Developmental education is a comprehensive process that focuses on the intellectual, social, and emotional growth and development of all students. Developmental education includes, but is not limited to, tutoring, personal/career counseling, academic advisement, and coursework.

Goals of Developmental Education

- ◆ To provide educational opportunity for all individuals, appropriate to their needs, goals, and abilities
- ◆ To enhance the retention of students
- ◆ To ensure proper placement by assessing levels of academic preparedness
- ◆ To develop skills and attitudes necessary for the attainment of academic, career, and life goals
- ◆ To maintain academic standards while helping learners to acquire competencies needed for success in academic coursework
- ◆ To promote the development and application of cognitive and affective learning theory
- ◆ To facilitate partnerships between educators, employers, and the community at large

History

NADE was founded in 1976 in Chicago as the National Association for Remedial/Developmental Studies in Postsecondary Education. NADE established its first local chapter in New York City in 1979. That same year NADE membership increased to more than 1200. The Journal of Developmental Education became the official journal of the association, and awards were established for outstanding service. The organization officially became NADE in 1984. The association's conferences added pre- and post-conference institutes and more exhibitors. Increased revenues enabled expansion of committee activities, revenue sharing with chapters, and communications and services to members. Recent initiatives include international involvement, political liaison efforts, self-assessment guidelines, secondary/postsecondary partnerships, and certification processes for developmental education programs.

2012 National Conference – Orlando, FL February 22-25, 2012

Leave the winter weather behind and join us in Orlando, Florida for the NADE Conference February 22-25, 2012! The conference will be held at Disney's Coronado Springs Resort, a convention hotel which celebrates the character and traditions of the American Southwest and Northern Mexico. The theme for this conference is Developmental Education: A Mosaic of Learning. When used as an adjective, mosaic means "composed of a combination of diverse elements," which describes a unique way of viewing our comprehensive mission in developmental education. We invite you to submit a proposal--tell us about your program's unique elements, and next February, come experience a rich mosaic of diverse innovations.

Certification

NADE Certification recognizes programs that meet or exceed criteria of good practices as defined by professional research and literature of the field. The program components eligible for certification are: tutoring services, course-based learning assistance, and developmental coursework. The certification process requires that a program component demonstrate the use of quality practices by submitting a theoretical framework, the results of a systematic self-study using the NADE Self-Evaluation Guides and evaluation data that confirms the program component is meeting its goals and objectives.
